After any Sickness

nothing so rapidly restores health and vigor as SCOTT'S EMULSION. It is the essence of natural body-nourishment, so medically perfect that nature immediately appropriates and distributes it to every organ, every tissue—feeding, nourishing and restoring them to normal activity.

SCOTT'S EMULSION is not a patent medicine, but is nature's body-nourishment with curative, upbuilding properties and without a drop of drug or alcohol. It contains superior cod liver oil, the hypophosphites of lime and soda with glycerine, and is so delicately emulsified that it enters the system without digestive effort—builds, tones and sustains.

After croup, whooping cough, measles and other child ailments it is nature's ally in restoring health.

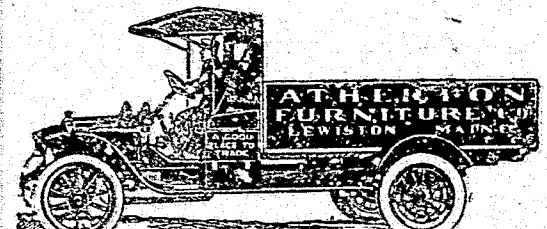

After grippe or pneumonia it imparts strength and health, and for colds, coughs, sore, tight chests and throat troubles SCOTT'S EMULSION gives the greatest relief known.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Bloomfield, N. J. 12-35

Easter Early.

Easter this year comes earlier than usual—indeed its date, March 23rd, has been preceded but once, since 1800, and that was in 1818 when Easter came on March 22d. In 1845 the date of Easter was March 23d and in 1896 it was March 22d. Thus, in the 19th century, Easter fell only three times, at a date, as early as it does this year—March 23d. It will not fall upon so early a date again in this century. Somewhere in 2000 and sometime it may fall again on March 23d—but that's a good while.

18th Birthday Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Q. Perham made a birthday party for their daughter Mildred and friend, Louise F. Bartlett, at home Thursday evening, it being their 18th anniversaries.

Fifty or more of their friends and neighbors were present. The evening was spent in playing games, consisting of a peanut hunt, consequences, winkum, etc. In the peanut hunt Rupert Hathaway found the most and received the first prize and Fred Cole won the booby prize.

Most of the party also had the pleasure of making a trip to Europe. While on the way many met with mishaps and disappointments which caused a good deal of merriment to the company.

We noticed A. M. Andrews, N. I. Swan and others assembled in the dining room trying to see who could tell the biggest story. The judges were unable to decide which should receive the prize, Andrews or Swan.

A bountiful treat was served during the evening of candy, pop corn balls, fancy crackers and punch.

Altogether was a jolly party not breaking up until a late hour, wishing them many happy-birthdays and leaving behind many tokens of their esteem.

The presents for Mildred were as follows:

Manicure and toilet sets—Woodstock High school.
Box of handkerchiefs—Laura E. Day.
Gold neck chain and pendant—Neighbors.

Silk handkerchief and birthday booklet—Harry Novey.
Bottle of perfume in fancy box—Alma Whitman.
Birthday book—Rupert Hathaway.
Money—Nellie Freble.
Address book—Mrs. Bartlett.
Neck chain—Mr. and Mrs. Amos Chase.

Bear Mountain Grange.

Bear Mountain grange held an all-day meeting on Saturday for the installation of the officers elect for the present year. Brother E. B. Libby of Auburn, secretary of the State grange, was present and performed the ceremonies of the occasion in which he was assisted by brothers Sanderson and Newcomb and sisters Carrie Hamlin and Lulu Plummer as matrons. Sister Jennie Sanderson was pianist and played a variety of fine airs for the marching service.

The officers for the present year are:

M. L. E. McIntire.
C. George Miller.
L. Harold Flint.
A. S. Orr Decker.
Chap.—W. K. Hamilton.
Treas.—Robbins Plummer.
Sec.—C. S. Hamlin.
G. E. John Muller.
Ceres—Lizzie Hall.
Flora—Edith McIntire.
Pioneer—Emma Miller.
L. A. S.—George Decker.

Secretary Libby addressed the grange with appropriate remarks, describing the recent annual convention of the State grange in Portland and the progress of the order during the past year in Maine.

In this connection he briefly alluded to the fact that the State grange is now working in practical coalition with the Maine Suffrage association for the object of procuring in the present legislature an amendment to the State Constitution to be submitted to the voters of the State for ratification at the next election.

This attitude of the order of Patrons in Maine was cordially approved by the worthy State secretary and received the applause of the audience.

Worthy lecturer Flint presented the following program of entertainment:

Music—Choir.
Reading—Mrs. Leah Day.
Song—Mrs. Norcross.
Entire—Mrs. Norcross.
Reading—Helen Clark of Crooked River grange.
Song—Mrs. Bar Weston.
Entire—Mrs. Bar Weston.
Fare—Members of Crooked River grange.
Obituary—Mrs. Mildred Mills.
Dramatis personae: L. W. Gould, Barbara, Mildred Mills, Mrs. Ball, Rebecca Shedd.

The present winter in this part of our State is unlike any of its predecessors within the memory of any persons now living. At this writing the public roads are still sheet of ice and walking is a very perilous exercise, when on foot in the street.

W. K. Hamlin is having a large quantity of pine box timber hauled to his mill, also hardwood logs for sawing into staves for shooks. He is already decorating the sides of the street leading Hiramward by handsome piles of box-boards.

BOLSTER'S MILLS.

Henry Wilbur is stopping at Fred Clark's.

Mrs. Russell Edwards was in the place recently on business.

Dr. A. E. Wright won a most delicate and beautiful silver, gold lined cup at the Poultry Show at Norway.

Stuart & Gay have a clearance sale of groceries, confectionery and dry goods, this Saturday from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

The first Finn wedding in town occurred at the home of John Korhonen, who lives on the farm formerly owned by A. F. Chute. Mr. Korhonen's wife's daughter, Hulda Matson was married to Mikka Aho on Jan. 5th in the presence of many relatives and friends. The bride is a handsome lass and the newly wedded pair will go to their home in Massachusetts.

Some excitement was caused in the village Tuesday by a runaway horse. William Baskell was driving toward home on the Norway road when a shaft broke and as he got out of the pump the horse became unmanageable and ran some distance stopping at Isaac Skillings where he encountered a set of sleds which threw him. Here he was captured by the citizens who gathered. Horse and driver are reported to be uninjured.

The streets are covered with ice and pedestrians are in danger of life and limb. The school children skate in the streets and though they receive many falls, seem to enjoy the fun. Not all have the pluck of little Phillip Wilbur whom the writer saw fall five times in a second, get up and skate on. Finally Phillip crawled on his hands and knees to the top of the hill, mounted his sled and triumphantly rode down. All sorts of vehicles are seen out and it is to be hoped that a kind Providence will soon see fit to send snow.

Children Should Have Good Light for Studying

A poor light strains the eyes, and the injurious effects may last for life. An oil lamp is best. The light from the Rayo Lamp is soft and mellow. You can read or work under it for hours without hurting your eyes.

The RAYO is constructed scientifically. It is the best lamp made—yet inexpensive and economical. Made of solid brass—nickel plated. Lighted without removing chimney or shade. Easy to clean and rewick. Made in various styles and for all purposes.

means producing maximum crops with the least expense and without impairing the fertility of the soil. Lowell Fertilizers produce a profitable crop and increase the fertility of the soil by supplying a reserve for future seasons. "WILL CONTINUE TO USE LOWELL FERTILIZER."
I am very much pleased with Lowell Animal Fertilizers. I had about 4,000 barrels of potatoes on nearly 35 acres of ground, not as large this year as I have had in some years, but larger than the average grower has had this past season, which has been very wet and backward.

I expect to use your goods as long as you make them as satisfactory as in the past. GEORGE E. GARTLEY, Aroostook County, Me.

If Mothers Only Knew!

By Dr. True

Nineteen-twentieths of the sickness of children have two causes: constipation and worms!

The danger of constipation is understood, but there are 50 different kinds of worms that may exist in the stomach and bowels, and children are especially apt to have them. Usually stomach and pin worms. Signs of worms are: Indigestion, with a variable appetite; abnormal craving for sweets; nausea and vomiting; swollen upper lip; sour tongue; offensive breath; hard and full belly with occasional gripings and pains about the navel; face at one time flushed, then pale and listless; eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids; itching of the nose; itching of the rectum; short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth; little red points sticking out on tongue; starting during sleep; slow face; pale complexion; and irregular body, may be hot; and often, in children, convulsions.

Rid the child of worms and you will have a healthy, happy child.

NOTE—Dr. True's own prescription, sold under the name of Dr. True's Elixir, is the best remedy in the world for worms. It destroys all worm life, expels worms from the body and makes the child healthy again. All dealers, 35c, 50c and $1.00.

Maine's Oldest Guide.

"Linc" Daniels, Eighty-two Years Old, Makes His First Trip to the Metropolis in Forty Years and Is Amazed by the Changes—Needs Compass There More Than in Woods.

"Linc" Daniels, the oldest guide in Maine, is in New York for the first time in forty years. He is 82 years old, but does not look it, within 15 years at least. He is a very slender man, a trifle more than the average height, with the slightest droop to his shoulders, and only a sprinkling of gray in his hair and moustache.

Mr. Daniels is not doing New York on any cheap, sight-seeing trip, but is being personally conducted by Charles Koons Bishop, a Philadelphian, a man of wealth who lives at the Racquet Club when in that city. Mr. Bishop, spends six months of every year fishing, and "follows the seasons all over the world," as he expressed it yesterday at the Knickerbocker Hotel where he is entertaining his favorite guide.

"I have only two real friends in the world," said Mr. Daniels. "Two that I could count on. One is Mr. Bishop, who owns land on Sebago Lake, Maine. The other is 'Sally' Fisher. I have known him since she was a little girl, for she owns a place up there, and I know her whole family.

"You see Mr. Bishop and I are crazy about salmon. I don't admit it. We have what are called 'land locked salmon' up there."

"But what do you think of New York?" asked the reporter.

"It's the first time I have been in a city where I don't see a bit of ground. I went out on the top of this Knickerbocker Hotel yesterday and looked out and could not see ground anywhere.

Could not see the sky. "But I've been in the woods where I could not see the sky. That would be a novelty for a New York man, wouldn't it?"

"This city has changed so in 40 years that if I were set in any part of it and tried to find my way, I could not find my way. I have carried a compass in my pocket for years, and I need it more here than I do in the woods. I've been out once or twice alone, and I always manage to get back all right, but I don't know how to do it here. I am really lost. One day a girl showed me the way back. It was very nice of her to do it."

"What have you seen in New York?" "Oh everything—hotels, theatres, restaurants. But I was in Philadelphia for weeks before coming here. I was Mr. Bishop's guest at the Racquet Club. That was a starter, a preparation."

"How does New York compare with Philadelphia?"

"Just the same as New York would compare with Sandy Beach. That is a place up in Maine with about two houses and a church."

"But how does your host like the reflection on Philadelphia?" replied Mr. Bishop, for himself, smiling, "I like Sandy Beach."

"But to go back to fishing," said Mr. Daniels. "I have just had a long talk with Edgar Murphy, who is known in these parts. I believe, he has fished in my country for two weeks once and could not catch a single fish. I am going to convert him and make a fisherman of him. There are not so many fish up in my country, but it takes patient, clever work to get one."

"Likes to Land Big Fish."

"That's what I like about it," exclaimed Mr. Bishop. "One may not get many fish, but when one is landed it is a big fellow. I'd rather get one in five days (worth getting) than forty or fifty little ones a day."

Mr. Murphy took a seat in the circle and grinned as though he did not see the beauties of fishing without getting immediate results.

"But what do you see yesterday?" "It was as hard for one to get these sportsmen on the subject of New York as it was for them to catch a salmon."

"I went out on the McAlpin Hotel and looked down on Broadway. The people in the street looked like bugs."

"Yes," said Mr. Murphy. "We had to look at them. We could not look over for more than a glance, but 'Linc' leaned over the railing as long as we would permit him to. You may wonder where I put him to. I'll tell you the truth. They are hiring me at $5 a day to guide 'Linc' around New York. At first I had to start in at seven o'clock in the morning, but I notice it gets a little later every day."

"I get up at four o'clock at home, and in the shooting season of November, when we track deer on the fresh snow we never stop at all. I never heard of any one sleeping in November. So I can stand this for a little while."

"I reckon I need some one to guide me here," he said, "but I can show them a thing or two in the summer. Some fresh city fellows came up there once and started out with a bait canoe, and they had it loaded down with provisions and traps. I was paddling around and so was a friend of mine. We were after a buck deer, but when I saw the city fellows I said to myself, 'Oh, what's the use. They'll get it, and I started back."

"I tried to capture Deer."

"My friend cautioned me to follow. 'Come on,' he said, 'they're going to have some fun. They are going to take it alive.' So we paddled along near by and the buck deer was swimming. Then 'The one in the middle is going to lasso him,' said my friend. And, sure enough, he tied a rope around the buck's horns and started to lead it off.

The whole place, water, air and all was full of men, traps, pieces of the canoe and clothes. Two of the men were drowning and we pulled them in, while the deer swam off. I said: 'Young fellow, when you want to take a deer alive don't tackle that end of him.'

"By the way, can you cook?" "Certainly I can cook. The best thing in the world is planked salmon done before an open fire—not the imitation as in most hotels."

"How do you like the New York cooking?"

"He likes the cooking, but he won't stand for boiled sauces," said his New York guide. "I say he is perfectly right. It is an insult to a good chef to serve poor sauces, or a well cooked piece of meat or fish."

"Bah!" exclaimed Mr. Daniels, shrugging his shoulders. "I'd rather have a piece of deer meat on a stick than anything with sauce. The offender it falls in the jacket the better it is. That's sauce enough for me."

"Have you had any exciting adventures in New York?"

"The most exciting was losing my hat. The wind carried it off. I started to run for it forgetting the danger. These two men pinned me down, one on either side, and in a second a dozen men were running for my hat. I never was so surprised in my life. In my country every man runs for his own hat."

Not Necessary to Run for Hat

"It's the other way around here," said Mr. Murphy. "I told 'Linc' Never run for your hat here. It is only dangerous, but twenty-five men will risk their lives under trolley cars around automobiles for it and return it to you with smiles."

"That's so. You beat us all on that. But I've had an experience few men in this town can say they've had. I was in the woods a whole year, once, without seeing a human being other than two Indians. I was with another guide of course, and we had a camp and then a sort of station miles away. We spent a whole year trapping, and a man was not safe in the woods in those days."

After we had been there several months two Indians came up and I asked them if they had any tobacco. They said they had, so I told them they were welcome. We kept them as long as the tobacco lasted, and then we chased them away, we followed their tracks for miles, to be sure they were not coming back to kill us. Many a time I have had a bullet whizz over my bunk at night."

"He tells fish stories too," said Mr. Bishop, who was a keen sportsman. "The other fellow is 'Sally' Fisher. I have known him since she was a little girl, for she owns a place up there, and I know her whole family."

"You see Mr. Bishop and I are crazy about salmon. I don't admit it. We have what are called 'land locked salmon' up there."

Facts about Appletrees

The most important of all fruits which can be produced in temperate climates, if not the most important fruit which the Creator has bestowed upon man, is the apple. Were people generally in possession of information which would enable them to form conclusions in relation to the value of a single appletree, no one who has a spot of terra firma large enough for a house lot, would neglect to plant one.

Hayward speaks of an appletree in Duxbury, Mass., which was upwards of 100 years old, was 16 feet in circumference 8 inches above the ground, and which produced in one year fruit from which ten barrels of cider was made, besides 80 bushels of apples for the cellar.

An appletree in Natick, Mass., was grafted to the Porter apple when 75 years old, and the 7th year from grafting produced 15 barrels, which sold for 30 dollars.

The original Hurlbut appletree produced 40 bushels in one year, and 20 the next.

In Orange, N. J., a Harrison appletree produced 100 bushels in one year.

An appletree in Farmington, Me., produced 16 bushels the 10th year from the planting of the seed.

Cole says he has had fruit from an appletree in Plymouth, Mass., when the tree was 200 years old.

We have seen an appletree on the farm of Mr. Calvin Fessenden of Winton, Me., from which a crop of 24 bushels of Baldwin was gathered in one year.

An appletree brought from England and planted near Hartford, Conn., produced fruit when 200 years old.

Several appletrees in the United States are 12 feet in circumference, each.

Appletrees are found to flourish best on undulating lands or hills. In low and sheltered situations there is more exposure to extremes of heat and cold.

Appletrees are more sure in their products in northern, north-western, or western exposures than in southern or eastern ones.

Appletrees are more exposed to winter killing in situations where frosts kill vegetation earliest in the fall.

The Baldwin tree is nearly certain to winterkill where the thermometer sinks to 33 degrees below zero.

The summers are too long at the South to produce winter apples, as they over-ripen, and the Baldwin apple becomes a summer or fall apple when cultivated in the South.

The Baldwin is the tenderest variety of the apple that we cultivate. It is too late to winterkill to be relied upon in Franklin County excepting on high hills.

The Black Oxford is very hardy. It will not winterkill even when the thermometer sinks 40 degrees below zero.

Trees grafted near the ground are much more liable to winterkill than those which are grafted on the tops.

Branches of trees which grow in a horizontal position come into bearing sooner than those which grow more nearly in a perpendicular position.

Grafted trees, and leaning trees are the best bearers.

English orchardists, in order to hurry certain trees into bearing, bend and tie down the branches.

Lameness

Sloan's Liniment is a quick and reliable remedy for lameness in horses and other farm animals.

"Sloan's Liniment surpasses anything on earth for lameness in horses and other farm animals. I would not sleep without it in my stable."

Good for Swelling and Abscess. Mr. H. M. Gibbs, of Lawrence, Kan., R. F. D. No. 3, writes: "I had a mare with an abscess on her neck and one on her leg. Sloan's Liniment entirely cured her. I keep it all the time for all sorts of swellings and for everything about the stock."

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

is a quick and safe remedy for hog cholera.

Governor of Georgia uses Sloan's Liniment for Hog Cholera.

"I heard Gov. Brown (who is quite a farmer) say that he had never lost a hog from cholera and that his remedy always was a tablespoonful of Sloan's Liniment in a gallon of slops, decreasing the dose as the animal improved."

Last month Gov. Brown and myself were at the Agricultural College building and in the discussion of the ravages of the disease, Gov. Brown gave the remedy named as 'unfailing.'"

Mrs. Burnham is a lady highly esteemed, and is very active for one of her years and her many friends wish her a good many more birthdays.

Mrs. Hannah Henderson Jordan.

We were greatly shocked and saddened at hearing of the death of our kind friend and neighbor, Mrs. Hannah Henderson Jordan, who has been spending the winter in Norway with her daughter Mrs. Carrie A. Morrill.

Mrs. Jordan has been in poor health for a long time, but seemed as well as usual until Friday. She failed rapidly and passed away Sunday night, just eight o'clock, Jan. 19 with plural pneumonia. She will be greatly missed by all for she was a kind and loving wife and mother, a neighbor that was always ready to help and comfort others.

This was the last of several which stood on the Hubbard lot, and was built for the late Henry R. Morton, who later moved the business to South Paris, leaving two buildings, one of which burned about 25 years ago. For some time the other was used as a storage place but of late has been empty.

Best of the season, so far, is the verdict concerning the supper and entertainment of the Baptist circle, Tuesday evening, Jan. 14. The supper was in charge of the gentlemen and was a very fine one. The entertainment, with a goodly lot of other things, made a most good enough for anybody. The entertainment was the play, "How the Story Grew," and was made even more entertaining by the bright local hits worked into the dialogue. About 170 enjoyed the supper and play.
